One Step Closer to Magnet Recognition

After months of preparation, Children's added the final touches to our Magnet application and submitted it to the American Nurses Credentialing Center (ANCC) June 1. The document, more than 430 pages in length with 2,823 pages of reference materials, captures stories of who we are as caregivers at Children's. While you may be familiar with Magnet as a benchmark for nursing excellence, it's about all of us and how we support each other through teamwork, shared decision-making, interdisciplinary relationships and our commitment to putting patients first in everything we do.

Magnet recognizes clinical excellence, exemplary quality care and outcomes. Since its inception in 1994, Magnet has been considered to be the Gold Standard in nursing. In fact, only 6 percent of hospitals in the United States have achieved this status, making it a standout honor in healthcare.

Later this year, appraisers from the ANCC will visit Children's to see firsthand the amazing work you do to deliver quality care to the kids in our communities. In the meantime, we'll continue highlighting examples of how we're exemplifying Magnet excellence each and every day and how you can get involved in the recognition process.
