Service Award Honorees

Barbara Powers, 45 Years

Sibley Administration

A coding auditor in the Sibley Heart Center at Children's at Egleston, Barbara is a jack of all trades—taking care of supplies and making sure charges are correct. Anyone who spends time in her area will hear co-workers saying, "Where's Barb?" or "Get Barb; she'll take care of that." Her knowledge and expertise could be intimidating to novices. One former co-worker remembers being embarrassed because a hematologist asked for a jamshidi needle, and she had no idea what that was. Barbara knew exactly what it was though and knew where one could be found. Yet, because of the way in which she handled the situation—making her co-worker feel supported, rather than foolish—Barbara's kindness is remembered to this day.

With an energy level that is legendary, Barbara has the ability to multitask and is a great team player. Her beautiful smile and great laugh radiate pleasure to everyone around her, and the pride she takes in her job is obvious in how extraordinarily well she does it.

Barbara is a huge Atlanta Falcons fan, and she is an athlete herself—she has participated in the Peachtree Road Race consistently since 1992. On the home front, she is very proud that her granddaughter, whom she helped raise, is now a freshman at the University of Georgia.

For 45 years, Barbara has rolled up her sleeves and worked hard for Children's. Her efforts have helped us become the organization we are today.

Maxine Dunn, 40 Years

Inpatient Nursing

Even as a young girl, Maxine knew her calling in life was to help people. Her grandmother always told her it was important to think of others—not just herself—and Maxine has done just that her entire life. She began as a volunteer at Grady for the American Red Cross and eventually served as a nursing assistant there before finding her real home in pediatrics. She now works the night shift at Children's at Hughes Spalding.

Now, 40 years later, she is unwavering in her commitment to helping others. Maxine's co-workers say that when she is on the job, things run smoothly and she manages to keep an eye on everything—whether it's doctors' orders, charts or lab results—she is always there to make sure things are in the right place at the right time.

Many of the patients on her unit have sickle cell disease, which can be stressful for the entire family. But Maxine's pleasant demeanor and calming presence act as a soothing medicine of its own. She also has a knack for lightening things up with her sassy sense of humor.

Maxine is known for being the true fashionista on her unit. Yet, because of her generous nature, Maxine once gave a co-worker a pair of earrings she was wearing, simply because she admired them. Even when she is in scrubs, you can be sure they are spotless, perfectly pressed and she is wearing fabulous shoes.

Service Award Honorees

Edith Robertson, 40 Years
Inpatient Nursing

A physician who works closely with her believes Edie's picture should be next to the definition of nurse in the dictionary. Edie is a clinical educator at Children's at Hughes Spalding, which enables caregivers campus-wide the chance to take advantage of her tremendous knowledge and expertise.

Before holding this position, Edie worked in various capacities in the Emergency Department, and she was instrumental in bringing the Pediatric Advanced Life Support (PALS) to Children's at Hughes Spalding. But these days, Edie is content to let the younger nurses get the adrenaline rush that comes with direct patient care in the Emergency Department, while she gives back as an educator.

The consummate teacher, she is helping a new generation of nurses develop their skills, compassion, patient rapport and confidence. She has an intuitive understanding of how adults learn, and she is the go-to person for new and experienced nurses alike.

Her caring, unflappable nature has its roots in Edie's childhood. The middle child of 12 siblings, she always played the role of peacemaker. Perhaps it is this skill that has contributed to the wonderful way she has of listening to an issue—asking intelligent questions, then rendering a thoughtful and valuable opinion. Edie is a natural connector who seems to effortlessly link people to one another, for the greater good of everyone involved.

Emma Allen, 35 Years
Radiology

Anyone who has been to the Children's at Hughes Spalding radiology department during the past 3½ decades knows Emma. She has been with the department all that time—originally coming to Hughes Spalding from Grady. She is truly a part of our radiology department's foundation.

Emma is known far and wide as the face of radiology because hers is the first face people see when they come in for imaging. Her friendliness and total focus on customer service immediately put people at ease. Families can feel her warmth and her love for children, and she has been known to watch siblings while parents go back with a patient or find a toy to calm a fussy little one.

What is abundantly clear is that Emma adores kids and their parents and they adore her. In fact, some parents love Emma so much they call her at Children's, just to hear that friendly, familiar voice.

Dorothy Horton 35 Years

Emergency Department

Dorothy is positioned squarely in the middle of command central in the Emergency Department at Children's at Hughes Spalding. It is a chaotic scene—phones are ringing, nurse call-buttons are going off, worried parents are asking questions, EMS calls are coming in and physicians and nurses are making requests. It is when things are at their busiest that humble, unassuming Dorothy turns into five superheroes.

With her calm and extremely patient demeanor, she is the perfect person to work in such a high-stress area. Yet, it is her resourcefulness that has made her the go-to person for the Emergency Department staff. Dorothy's co-workers do not just depend on her, they adore her. She brings a sense of family to the department, and she is considered the beloved departmental aunt.

She is also a much-loved aunt and mother figure in her personal life. Dorothy is the second of nine siblings, many of whom she helped raise. And, like any good aunt, she likes to feed people. She is famous for the scrumptious treats she shares with her co-workers.

Margaret Lambert, 35 Years

Day Surgery

People who work with Margaret in day surgery at Children's at Egleston see her as a role model. They try to emulate the things that make her special—from her down-to-earth demeanor and critical thinking skills to her ability to gracefully manage virtually any situation.

Margaret sets the standard for providing quality care under pressure. She is one of those special people whose thoughtfulness makes the recipient feel good. If someone is sick, she gives them a card, organizes meals, drives them to doctors' appointments or is just there to keep them company during a tough time.

That level of care and dedication certainly extends to her patients, who not only benefit from Margaret's nursing expertise, but take great comfort in her nurturing bedside manner. One patient's father was so moved by Margaret's care, that when he wrote a book about his daughter who passed away, he praised Margaret in the story.

Dorothy Lee, 35 Years

Rehabilitation

Most people who know her will be shocked to learn that when Dorothy first started with Children's she didn't know if she could handle the job. Moving into rehabilitation therapy from the solitude of the dark X-ray room, Dorothy's heart would break when she saw sick children, and she was not sure she was cut out to be around them.

It is a testament to Dorothy's huge heart and the power of her positive spirit that she grew to love her job. Currently an aide at Children's at Scottish Rite, she knows what a difference Children's makes, and she rejoices in the many successes in which she is able to take part.

Dorothy has weathered many changes at Children's—in management, technology and even the location of her job. But she has ridden out all the changes like a pro. Dorothy is never grumpy—she is much too busy transporting patients, assisting with procedures, readying therapy pools or preparing equipment. When she isn't doing something directly related to therapy, she is still on the go—doing front office work, filling in for absent staff or talking to waiting patients. She is great at pitching in and getting things done.

Janet McCants, 35 Years

Cardiac Intensive Care Unit

Janet is a resource nurse in the Cardiac Intensive Care Unit at Children's at Egleston. Like most nurses, she will tell you how rewarding it is to work at the bedside, but it takes a real toll on the body. Yet that does not stop Janet from doing what she loves. When her knees gave out, she had surgery and went right back to patient care.

That is not the only sacrifice Janet makes for her job—she drives more than 200 miles a day during her commute to Children's. Just so that she can spend her time caring for our young heart patients and their families.

Janet has visited the Republic of Georgia several times to spread her love around the globe. She arrived with three crates of provisions, helped establish a medical unit and assisted with historical heart surgeries. One mother was so grateful to Janet for the special care she gave her child, she asked Janet to be the child's godmother. Janet accepted the honor and made it official by attending the Russian Orthodox ceremony. Janet's godchild is now a healthy and thriving teenager—thanks in large part to Janet.

Kay Parker, 35 Years

Judson L. Hawk Clinic

Kay is a total advocate for her patients and their families in her position at the Judson L. Hawk Clinic at Children's at Scottish Rite. She sees the big picture. Not only does she make sure each child gets what they need on an outpatient basis, she goes a step further and looks at what the child may need down the road. Her concern does not stop there—she often follows up with patients for years.

As if she is not busy enough, Kay works at Camp Walk-n-Roll every summer, where campers with muscular dystrophy can be with children facing similar challenges. While there, she enjoys getting to laugh and play with kids outside of the hospital setting—helping them to live their lives to the fullest, despite their medical conditions.

Kay is very humble, and she never pats herself on the back. The clinic has become a part of Kay's DNA, and she is virtually a walking encyclopedia. She knows the clinic's history, the people and the procedures—knowledge that is invaluable.

Nancy Wagner, 35 Years

Neonatal Services

Many nurses are natural lifelong learners. But Nancy, a staff nurse leader in Neonatal Services at Children's at Egleston, has elevated the concept of continuing education to an art form—she seems to acquire knowledge as easily as she breathes.

When she began her work with special care babies, Nancy saw first hand that not all of them were able to live healthy lives once they left the hospital. When she learned about a new dimension of practice called developmental care, it was as though someone turned on a light for her. She has taught parents about the benefits of infant stimulation and interaction ever since. From there, Nancy took courses in breast feeding, and she put that knowledge and passion to work to expand our lactation consultant program.

Nancy is also tremendously dedicated to her own family. Her adult daughter is an intensive care unit (ICU) nurse and one of her twin sons just completed seminary, while the other has a degree in clinical mental health. With Nancy as their mother, it is no surprise that each of her children have pursued careers serving others. Nancy's husband Jack is the love of her life. The couple has been married for 40 years, and she says Jack takes good care of her so that she can take good care of her sick babies.

Jennifer Williams, 35 Years

Apnea Center

When Jennifer was a girl, her mother gave birth to triplets. One of them had a club foot requiring extensive medical care at what was then known as Egleston. Jennifer remembers two things about those hospital days—the amazing chicken on Thursday nights and the loving treatment her sister received. The chicken became a family tradition and the medical care inspired Jennifer to pursue a career in nursing.

Jennifer's aunt is Barbara Powers, who is being recognized for 45 years of service this year. It was at Barbara's suggestion that Jennifer applied at Children's. Jennifer aced her interview, and the family's record of excellence continued.

Jennifer began as a respiratory technician, but because of the merger, she had to find a new position. She did not let the need for change get her down, however, and she went back to school while continuing to work. Jennifer has never been afraid to take on extra work to help advance her career, mainly because it has never felt like work to her. She is now an apnea center technician at Children's at Egleston.

Jennifer is a gentle, tenderhearted spirit—the ideal traits of an apnea technician. She coaches parents through sleep monitor set-up and she takes the time to put their exhausted and worried minds at ease. Jennifer is also the kind of person people can talk to about anything. She is always there with a solid shoulder, a listening ear and a considerate word.

Service is the heart of the care we provide every day at Children's Healthcare of Atlanta. With our heart, we care for our patients, their families and each other. We are lucky to have individuals with such dedication, compassion and devotion toward the needs of children. This is our chance to recognize those who have contributed to the health and well-being of children all across Georgia. Thank you all for your service and your endless dedication to the Mission and Vision of Children's.
