VolunTEENs Share Time in Exchange for Lasting Memories

Every year hundreds of Atlanta teenagers vie for spots in the Children's VolunTEEN program. The eight-week program places participants throughout Children's at Hughes Spalding, Children's at Scottish Rite and Children's at Egleston. In their own words, here's what some of our VolunTEENs had to say about the experience.

"Volunteering at Children's at Scottish Rite has been one of the most rewarding experiences of my life. I realize that there were many students that applied for these very coveted positions, and I feel extremely fortunate to have been accepted. One of my goals is to become a pharmacist, and being able to volunteer in a medical setting has really helped confirm my desire to become a pharmacist and work in a medical field."

I learned a lot about myself while volunteering at Children's. First of all, I learned that good health is really important and should never be taken for granted. If I could only have one thing, I would choose good health—not wealth or beauty or even the cutest guy in school for a boyfriend. I also learned that a simple smile can help someone that is having a hard day. It seems like such a simple thing to do, but sharing a smile with a sick child or his/her parent can brighten the day." — Rebecca Harman

"The sparkle of an eye, a chuckle, a smile on a child's face is all it takes to assure yourself that you brought happiness to a child. Every single day that I volunteered at Children's at Scottish Rite, I left filled with joy and feeling lucky that I got the privilege to work with the amazing individuals that make everything happen and the wonderful children here at Children's.

Since I am going to be in my senior year of high school this fall, I have really started thinking about what I want to do with my life and what I want to become. Through volunteering at Children's, I have started considering nursing as a career. Education was my first choice, yet in the past couple of months, nursing has taken that spot due to the amazing opportunities I have seen nursing has.

Overall volunteering at Children's means so much to me. This experience has taught me to be thankful for everything God has given me and not to get caught up in the little things in life. It has also taught me to appreciate all the men and women who work in the medical field; they all have a very important job!" — Lindsey Godfrey

"I am very grateful to have had the opportunity to serve as a VolunTEEN at Children's. Not only did this experience reinforce my love for children and desire to be a nurse someday, it also gave me a new sense of compassion for sick and hurting people. I had never had any experiences with the hospital before this program, so my eyes were really opened to just how important compassion is.

I think the coolest experience was bringing the art cart around to children. One day I helped a little boy make a picture frame and a door hanger name tag. The cool part apart it was that he did not want to make them for himself, but for his brother and sister. He was the patient, but still thinking of others before himself. The boy was not actually able to do very much, but he told us how to spell his brother and sister's names and picked out their favorite colors. He kept telling us how excited he was to give it to his brother and sister. My favorite part of the whole thing, though, was that he told us to write "best brother" and "best sister" on the door hanger and picture frame. Here was this little hurting boy in a hospital bed caring more about his brother and sister than he was about his own situation! If only we could all be like that boy!

I had a great experience and will definitely do it again next summer!" — Kiersten DiQuollo

"I have really enjoyed working at Children's at Scottish Rite this summer. There is definitely a reason why this is my second summer as a VolunTEEN. I came back, because this program really showed what working in a hospital would be like. I liked the fact that my two shifts were completely different. One was in the medical office building, and the second was in the PACU. They showed me the variety of jobs there are in a hospital.

This program has been such a great learning experience. It also has been really fun, too! I have met some very interesting people in addition to the volunteering. Last year, I came into this program thinking about going into the medical field, and now, I am certain that I want to be a doctor. I think this program is a really great opportunity for kids who are interested in medicine. The VolunTEEN Program really introduced me to the hospital experience and has made me want to further pursue my dream of becoming a doctor." — Priyanka Krishnan
